INDEX: Work Unit

A work unit is best described as an area where an employee, or unit or team of employees, has been assigned to accomplish specific position responsibilities. Area can refer to:

- a physical location such as an office space, building or group of buildings and/or
- a rotating post or relief post as well as simply a supervisor or group of supervisors.

Careful consideration must be given when defining a work unit due to the impact on a department's ability to manage its work and employees. Work units identified by the department will be reviewed when analyzing whether a workforce reorganization plan or a new posting is needed.

Departments are not required to create a specific work unit. Where one does not exist, the department is the work unit.

Below are some examples of existing work units:

Department	Classification	Work Unit
FP&M	Custodian I	Team 10
VDL	Laboratory Technician III	Serology
Campus Dining Services	Cook I	Seasons Dining Center
